

Missing Person Report

CONFIDENTIAL

The MPR provides a format to collect information in an efficient and coherent manner and is used to support a missing person investigation. It may also be used as a guide for conducting an interview. Information used to complete the form may come from multiple sources and from multiple interviews. Use a separate form for each interview and collate the information in a master file. If there is more than one missing person associated with this case, use a separate form for each subject.

Instructions and Comments

1. The MPR is a companion to the Missing Person – Initial Report. The information gathered there is vital to making the decision whether or not a physical search is necessary, and it also provides the initial data needed to initiate an operation.
2. This form provides the detailed planning and searching data that may be required to manage the search operation and is a tool useful to the on-going investigation.
3. The first detailed interview should be with the most knowledgeable person available.
4. Use as many forms as necessary to conduct multiple interviews. In the event more than one person is missing in the same incident, use a separate form for each subject.
5. If there are evidentiary issues, each form should be initiated by and retained in the custody of the investigating officer.
6. Information gathered in multiple interviews and on separate subjects must be collated and compared.
7. Additional information generated by the questions listed on the form should be referenced to the question and detailed on the back of the page.
